champagne.

Mr. Wardwell said that he consulted two physicians regarding Mrs. Coddington-Fellows's drinking habits, and afterwards took one of the physicians to her residence to treat her.

On May 8 he again called at her residence and found her so intoxicated that he could not hold an intellgent conversation with her. He called again May 9 and found Mrs. Coddington-Fellows asleep on a sofa in the parlor. She seemed to be very much intoxicated, and while he was there she was carried upstairs to her sleeping-roofs.

During the examination of Mr. Wardwell Mrs. Coddington-Fellows entered and took a seat near her counsel. She was accompanied by her husband. She has discarded the mourning she wore at the beginning of the inquiry, before her marriage to Mr. Fellows. To-day she wore a black silk dress, trimmed with white lace, and a light straw hat trimmed with white daisles and light green ribbons. She carried an ivory and lincously.

The next witness was Guido Rieck, a black silk fan, which she used continuously.

The next witness was Guido Rieck, a clerk in a drug store at Sixty-fourth street and Park avenue. He was asked several questions concerning his having been called up in the night by messengers from Mrs. Coddington-Fellows to buy champagne. All these questions were objected to and the objections were sustained. The clerk said that two weeks ago last Sunday a lady whom he thought was Mrs. Coddington-Fellows went to the store. She was served by another clerk, who gave her something in a glass.

clerk, who gave her something in a glass.

"What did it look like?" asked counsel. The defendant's counsel objected to the question. The objection was overruled, and witness replied that he couldn't see what was in the glass.

Frederick J. Jaeger, a caterer, gave unimportant testimony.

Frederick Lahn, cashier at Hotel Savoy, testined that on All st while he was acting as room airs. Coddington-Fellows went to hotel and registered as "Mrs. J. Ward." He said that her hat was awry and her hair disarranged and her breath smelled of liquor. His impression was that she was intoxicated, and he hesitated about assigning her a room but finally did so, He did not see her again while she was at the hotel and did not know when she left. Miss Louise Coddington, the eldest daughter of the defendant, was the next witness. She said she would be fifteen years old June 13 rext.

"After your father's death do you remember having seen your mother intoxicatel?" asked Lawyer Cleveland.

"Yes, sir," replied the daughter without hesitation.

"Well, it was two years last March. Father had died during the preceding February. I went not my mother's room and found her lying across the bed asieco. Her face was flushed, and her breath smelled. I was rightened, never having seen her in that condition before.

"I called a servant and then went for a physician. I returned with him, but did not remain in the room while the physician attended mother."

Miss Coddington then told of other occasions when she had seen her mother under the influence of liquor.

"Did you ever see your mother drink any liquor?"

"Yes, sir."

"Please say what kind of liquor you have seen her drink."

"Yes, sir."
"Please say what kind of liquor you have seen her drink."
"Champagne, brandy, sherry, port wine and whiskey; in fact, every kind of liquors."
"Where did she keep these liquors?"
"Usually in her room."
Miss Coddington continued to tell of various occasions when she had seen her mother intoxicated. Witness said that during the past Summer and Winter the occasions had increased in frequency and continued for longer periods than formerly.

"No, she drank at all hours."
"Did you ever see your mother drink pure alcohol?"
"Yes, on one occasion."
Miss Coddington said that her mother neglected her little sister Gladys, and that she (the witness) took care of the child. that she (the witness) took care of the child.

On one occasion, the witness said, when little Gladysi was just recovering from congestion of the lungs, her mother went into the room and Gladys, who was afraid of her mother. Jungped out of bed. Her mother afterwards raised the window in the room. Fearing that her sister would catch cold. Louise took her upstairs with her.

Continuing, Miss Coddington said that Mr. Fellows, her mother's present husband, had visited her mother frequently during the first Summer after her father's death, and had continued his visits more or less requently up to their marriage.

During her examination Miss Coddington was entirely unembarrassed, and gave her answers without hesitation, in a most intelligent manner. Her whole bearing on the witness-stand was more that of a woman of twenty-five than a miss of fifteen.

Mother and daughter did not look at each other once during the direct examination.

"When your mother is straight, she is capable of managing her affairs, is she not?" asked Lawyer Thompson.
"Yes, but she is so seldom straight." This answer raised a laugh, and for the first time mother and daughter exchanged glances.

After the examination of Clifford and Henry Goodwin, sons of the petitioner, whose testimony was to a great extent a repetition of previous testimony, the hearing was postponed until next Monday afternoon.

The forty-seventh annual meeting of the stockholders of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company was held at their offices in 'he Mills Building to-day. Two stockholders took occasion to criticise President Collis P. Huntington's absence, and protested against the adoption of a summarized annual report.

Joseph R:chardson presided. Secretary Lane offered in place of the regular printed annual report, containing full details, a .ypewritten statement of the condition of the Company. While it furnished figures it did not give the expenses and earnings in a way that was satisfactory to all stockholders. When Elias Hart moved that it be adopted, J.

F. Greenough said:
"No! No! Why is not President Huntquestions. This is the only time of year get in a word. He is a salaried official when he is in the city."

"It is very extraordinary that President Huntington is not here," chimed in Jacob Fleischhaur.

"This report does not show very accurate management," continued Mr. Greenough, in an angry tone.

"And I object very much to its adoption," broke in Mr. Fleischhaur.

When remarks warre made concern. And I object very much to its adpition," broke in Mr. Fleischhaur.

When remarks were made concerning the indefinite nature of expense items, the secretary called attention to a note attached to the typewritten report. The note stated that the annual meeting had followed so closely upon the earliest date on which complete returns in regard to transactions could be obtained, that a detailed and printed report could not be prepared in time for the annual meeting. Only a general summary of the year's operations had been prepared, to be followed by a printed report in two or three weeks.

of the Opening Raid.

Brokers and speculators found little change this morning. There was a perfect dearth of news, and no ment to branch out in any direction. The pools in Chicago Gas and Sugar were the only ones that showed the least disposition to move their special-ties, and the traders confined themselves least disposition to move their specialties, and the traders confined themselves almost entirely to chasing eighths and quarters in these stocks. At the start a raid was made on Sugar, and the stock declined a point, to 59 7-8, but just as soon as the shorts attempted to cover, a rise to 101 1-4 ensued.

The raily was assisted by the strength shown by Chicago Gas, which advanced 1 1-4, to 74 3-4. The volume of business was exceedingly light, and the commission houses had only limited orders to execute for out-of-town account. The fact that the sugar schedule is about to come up for debate in the Senate makes many operators hold off, as the general list is likely to be influenced very materially by the vote on that question.
American Sugar, preferred, rose 1-2, to 52 1-2; Burlington & Quincy, 5-8, to Missouri Pacific, 1-4, to 27 1-2; and Wheeling & Lake Erie, 3-8, to 11 7-8,

Louisville & Nashville fell 3-4, to 44 5-8;
Lead, 5-8, to 37 5-8; Reading, 1-2, to 17 3-8,
and New England, 3-8, to 3 3-8. American Tobacco, after rising 1-2, to 51 1-2, declined to 83 1-2.

Stocks were all down after midday,
but the dealings lacked spirit and the fluctuations were without special significance. Chicago Gas and Sugar lost the early improvement.

The market, in the main, ruled firm, Sugar railled to 100 5-8 and Chicago Gas to 741-4, but they reacted to 100 3-8 and 73 3-4 respectively at the close, Jersey Central was weaker, ow-ing to its recently published statement for April, and declined 4, to 104. The drop was accelerated by the execution of stop orders. Lead was firm, and rose to 33 1-8, and Distillers also held well around 24.

started the report that the Government was concentrating gold at this centre. New York Sub-Treasury officials said this morning that weekly installments of gold have been received here during the past three months from other cities. The transfers have ranged in amount from $2,000,000 down, but the officials state that no special importance can be attached to this maney movement, as the shipments were made in the regular course of business, mainly in payment of customs dues.

The largest shipments have been received from Philadelphia. The gold is sent here, it is said, simply because the Treasury Department at Washington finds it more convenient to have it at this centre than at any other Sub-Treasury. Sub-Treasuries in other cities accumulate gold faster than the one in New York, as there are fewer demands upon them for the withdrawal of gold.

James E. Ward & Co. have received per steamship Vigilincia, from Vera Cruz, 48,600 Mexican silver dollars, in transit to London, and the Bank of British North America 17,000 Mexican silver dollars also for export.

Thomas, for the Ravengold Mining Company, of West Virginia, askins for an injunction to prevent the miners from interfering with the working of its property at Cripple Creek. The bill recites that the title to the land is still vested in the United States Government, and the strikers are preventing the plaintiff from prosecuting necessary transactions to prove up the claim.

The bill also sets forth that the State officials have refused to give the plaintiff protection. Argument in the application was heard by Judges Hallett and Riner, who will render a decision today. If the injunction is granted United States troops will probably be sent against the miners.
